POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

Paving the way for rapid-fire action on the $464,000,000 state budget, presession budget hearings were inaugurated this week by the Joint Budget Committee of the two houses. The Warren budget represents a slash of $64,000,000 in state expenditures for the two-year period as compared to costs during the last two years of the Olson Administration.

Early action on tax reduction proposals also is foreshadowed, as Governor Warren's Tax Committee is now completing its work and plans to render its report to the legislature not later than March 15. This committee, in addition to recommending definite tax cuts, is also expected to make suggestions for conserving part of the present huge state surplus as an umbrella against a rainy day.

State Guard reorganization proposals are scheduled to be submitted to the Legislature as soon as Adjutant General Ray Hays has filed his recommendations with the Governor. During the legislative recess, Hays, who was only recently named to head the Guard, has conducted a survey and started a preliminary shake-up by retiring a number of officers who were commissioned during the Olson regime. In addition to presenting plans for revamping the State Guard along strict military lines, the new Adjutant General is also expected to recommend the creation of a Home Guard whose members would serve solely in their home communities.

Scores of post-war planning bills are on the docket, ranging from a highway building program to measures intended to protect ex-soldiers from having to join unions to get employment.

Bills to reorganize State Government; to abolish the "gin marriage law" and bills to liberalize divorce statutes; bills dealing with the manpower problem and scores of measures dealing with labor relations—such are some of the other proposals awaiting consideration. But all told there are 1,000 less bills this session than in most pre-war sessions.

Ration Books Given Out Last Week at School

An efficient corps of faculty members of both the Campbell Union Grammar and High schools and a group of volunteer citizens devoted hours of last week to registering applicants for War Ration Book No. 2.

Supt. Ira R. Abbott who was in charge of the registration reports that 5266 people received books, with only a small percentage that had extra canned goods on hand to declare, 5642 blue stamps being removed from the books. Coffee stamps to the number of 15,242 were removed from Ration Book I, and these mostly from children's books.

Mr. Abbott expressed deep appreciation for the help rendered him and his teachers by W. H. Van Dyke and the high school faculty and the people of the community. The thing now is to take care of these books, neither lose nor misplace them.

Cyclist Must Obey Traffic Laws

When you ride a bicycle you are part of traffic and must obey traffic laws, just as if you were driving a car.

This safety warning was sounded today by the California State Automobile association, pointing to the great increase in use of bicycles, particularly among adults, as a means of wartime transportation.

In addition to obeying general traffic laws such as keeping to the right and using hand signals, cyclists should ride single file when with other cyclists; carry no extra riders, and no bundles unless in a carrier or securely attached to the frame; and never "hook a ride" by hanging onto another vehicle.

At night bicycles must display a white light in front and a red tail light or red reflector.

The supplies were distributed and territories arranged for. Mrs. Clarence Fagalde has charge of the Cambrian territory and Mrs. Frank Jacobson and Mrs. E. R. Kennedy have charge of the remaining Campbell district.

Many ladies volunteered their services and no one has been asked to cover much territory so that it will be possible for the canvassers, in most instances, to walk, although extra gasoline is available for longer distances.

It seems unnecessary to emphasize the need of increas-

MADAME CHIANG KAI-SHEK

From time to time, women have risen in world history, whose force of character has turned the tide of national affairs. Many worked for the advancement of women's rights. Others undertook national reforms. Perhaps it is not strange that those who worked for the world's progress have been most often fundamentally religious. Madame Chiang Kai-Shek came to stand in the vanguard of China's rebirth.

Daughter of the famed Soong family of China, Madame Chiang has been heir to the Christian religion for several generations. She has likewise been heir to American ideologies, for her father was brought up in North Carolina. Returning to China, Charlie Soong married a descendant of Hsu Kwang-ki, one of the first Christians of China. "Soong Mayling," known to us as Madame Chiang, was not permitted to marry the Generalissimo until he had expressed his willingness to study Christianity—which he did embrace within a few years of his marriage. The Generalissimo soon insisted that his wife break with tradition by attending his dinners with his national leaders. Madame Chiang travels with him everywhere.

When "Mayling" returned to China after graduating from Wellesley College, she was full of the message of America. Somewhat disappointed to see America and other powers selling war goods to Japan with which to fight the Chinese, her attitude reflected some bitterness which has softened since our entry into the war. Her principal themes are collaboration of the east and west, and spreading in China the gospels of education, hygiene, and science as she learned them in America.

In her talks last week to Congress and the President, her personal charm and forcefulness played no small part in her plea for arms and for equality for her beloved China. "We have not been conquered, nor shall we be," declared the fragile lady in black and jade, before thoroughly conquered House and Senate audiences who rose to their feet shouting "Bravos."

THE SOLID SWISS

The words of a notorious German war song—"We'll take Switzerland, the country of blossoming trees, in just one night," have not been followed by the action as yet. But the German's seizure of Vichy-france completes an Axis encirclement of the Swiss. What's to follow?

Small groups of Swiss Nazis are working to undermine Switzerland's independence from within, represented by politician Alfred Zanedr and writer-editor Jakob Schaffner—a man who lived in Germany for years. The Swiss, however, have a certain Alpine solidity of nature, not unlike the terrain of their country. They are sober, rustic, and extremely individualistic, as are those in most countries who "live on the land."

Some say the secret of Swiss democracy lies in the fact that they have never had monarchial rule. They simply don't know how to kow tow! Class is practically non-existent, for the peasants rank high, culturally, and together with a middle-class, constitute the Swiss population.

The leaders in Swiss public life rose chiefly from the two classes, so the National Socialism of Germany makes no hit whatever. The Swiss have possessed a very real freedom of life and thought for many centuries, while German Socialism simply means monarchy in the hands of crackpots!

"POEM LOVELY AS A TREE"

On the roadside of the San Jose-Oakland highway stand the oldest rows of planted native-California sycamore trees in the world. It was gratifying to learn that these trees, on state highway right-of-way have been cared for by District IV tree maintenance.

Some day, we may drive freely down a long ribbon of road with the fragrance of California's green, growing things permeating the air. So in the meantime, let's not forget our trees—to maintain them and save them from pests and blights.

There's temptation these days to let things go—the things we valued pre-war—and maybe we've heard Joyce Kilmer's poem sung too many times to feel touched by it as we once might have been! But who doesn't feel the romance and wonder of nature when he stands beneath the old live oaks with low slung branches, and big-gnarled trunks? Who doesn't quicken to the smell of eucalptus in the dew of evening, or enjoy the shade of the sycamore on a hot June day? California's trees are famed the world around.

It's to be hoped other fine trees, not falling to the lot of the State, may receive like care from their owners. Trees are so many years a-growing.

"WILD WEST" RATIONING!

If you live in the snowbound mountains of California, or off in isolated mining camps, you stocked up last October with enough canned goods to last for seven months. But you were not a hoarder! You merely beat the winter lockup of snow, with enough food to see you through to spring.

The regional food rationing executive for OPA, Frederic A. Adams, now arranges it so persons cut off by winter weather and non-traversible distances, may obtain certificates permitting their purchases of the full value of the ration book—384 points—if necessary.

The job of the OPA in dealing with special cases would have been tremendous without mass distribution methods. But even so, there are many newly created communities of farm families and industrial workers in temporary foothill camps who would have to drive 20 to 50 miles to local stores.

This and other individual needs remain to be dealt with, and the OPA will wear the wrinkled brow of care for weeks to come while ironing out problems.

SAY "AAH"!

The English long have cherished their prounuciation and protected it against all comers. But with Yankee and Canadian soldiers stationed the length and breadth of the Island, the inhabitants are beginning to worry about what's to become of the English language!

In their anxiety, the director of the British Drama League has begun making phonograph records of the traditional British manner of speech!

Oddly enough English children delight in Yankee idioms, slang and drawling accents, while Americans never have been able to see the point of English colloquialisms. In England, you pronounce schedule with the sh instead of the sk sound, while ski changes to shi! Maybe the Yanks will come home bringing long, soft a's, but denuded of r's!

ANOTHER FIRST

California collected more than 6,000,000 tin cans every month last year—one-third of the total for the entire United States!

We are rightly proud of that showing—proud of the jeeps and guns and ships every community of this State has helped to build with its scrap metal.. From now on there will be fewer tin cans, but the scrap drive is still everybody's responsibility and everybody can help to keep it rolling, with California at the head of the list, until the big job is finished.

Conservation Week to be Observed Mar. 7-14

. Conservation Week in California, from March 7 to 14, will be observed this year throughout the state, stressing the message, "Practice Conservation for Victory—For Your County — For Your Children."

"We read about it, we talk about it, we hear it over the radio. Conservation has been forced upon us. The people, however, do not realize how rapidly our reserves are being depleted."

Sunday, March 7, beginning Conservation Week is Arbor Day. The schools of California will observe Arbor Day on Monday, March 8.

CAMPBELL AVENUE TO BE EXTENDED

It appears that following Monday's meeting of the county supervisors that the long sought direct route from Campbell to Saratoga is to become a reality.

After Campbell avenue was extended westward it was hoped that the road would be opened up further on, but Mrs. Laura E. Fellows, owner of the Quito Rancho, was unwilling to grant a right-of-way through the estate.

Attorney Alfred Aram announced to the board Monday that she had signified her intention of allowing the right-

This road, if completed, will bring the two towns of Campbell and Saratoga nearer together by eliminating three miles in the present round-about route.

Locust, Malaria Scourge

Of Spanish Morocco's 800,000 inhabitants, mostly Moslems, the highlanders raise sheep and goats; the lowlanders grow grains, beans, olives and fruits. Sizable export items included almonds, oranges, potatoes, canary seed, oxhides, wool, sheepskins, millet, fish and eggs. Malaria and locusts are scourges fought in large-scale campaigns by the government.

Rice is not rationed, the OPA has reassured consumers. Another announcement by OPA stated that prices for used bicycles will be substantially reduced in the near future.

BAGS 16 JAP PLANES—Maj. David L. Hill, 27-year-old U. S. Air Corps flyer, of Hunt, Texas, has 16 Japanese planes to his credit and 20 more probable hits. He served on the aircraft Carriers Saratoga, Ranger and Yorktown before signing up with the American Volunteer group in China where he was commanding officer of a fighter squadron. He holds the American Distinguished Flying Cross, the British Flying Cross and the Starred Wing and Cloud Banner, Fifth and Sixth orders, of China.

THIS, TOO, IS A Task Force

—and the task is War. Under the busy fingers of the long distance operators flow messages that move troops, locate and assemble supplies...that help to build ships, guns, tanks and planes.

To handle the gigantic volume of long distance calls, we could use more equipment if we could get it. But that would draw upon critical war materials that are needed at the fighting fronts.

So we earnestly ask you to co-operate by making, to war-busy centers, only long distance calls that are absolutely necessary.

Thank you for your help and your understanding.

THE BOOK MARK

by marty

"The Wisdom of China and India" an Anthology Edited by Lin Yutang.

Perhaps we can blame Ghandi's recent 21 day fast, which terminated today for this week's choice of a book to review. Not that there is anything in the book about Ghandi. On the other hand we find in this volume selections, choice ones, of Indian literature as well as Chinese literature.

Lin Yutang, as you know, is a widely known and well loved author, with several best-sellers to his credit, namely "My Country and My People," "A Moment in Peking," "With Love and Irony" and others.

He has collected a treasury of the wisdom and ideals of life that guided the thinking and living of the millions in Asia in the past centuries. Here are the best of the sacred books of Hinduism, Buddhism, Confucianism and Taoism. He made a special point of choosing them from a literary as well as philosophical standpoint. The editor has used the best available translations wherever possible and, in the majority of the Chinese selections, has made new translations of his own. For many of the selections he has written seperate introductions, and his glossaries of Hindu and Chinese terms and his dynastic tables are important features of the book.

The Indian section includes collections from the Rigveda Hymns, the Upanishads, the entire Epic Ramayana, Sermons by Buddha, the Panchatantra, all of the Light of Asia and the Surangama Sutra. The chief Chinese poets, he has given generous representation to, as well as to classical writers and storytellers.

This is what the publishers have to say "This is one of the finest volumes that has ever borne the imprint of Random House.

Lieut.-Gen. DeWitt Warns OCD in Letter to Director

In a letter from Lieut.-Gen. J. L. DeWitt, U. S. Army to James Sheppard, director of Civilian Defense, De Witt states:

"Enemy inaction along the Pacific Coast during the past several months may well give rise to a relaxation of public interest in Civilian Defense measures.

"A shrewd enemy takes advantage of a public state of lethargy, and may even attempt to cause a civilian population to be lulled into a sense of security, thereby creating a favorable opportunity for attack. The mere fact that enemy raids have not taken place along this coast should be a challenge to Civilian Defense to renew its vigilance.

"It is requested that you take necessary action to bring to the attention of the public generally the need for constant vigilance and attention to Civilian Defense training and preparedness.

"This letter is not intended to be a criticism of the efficiency of Civilian Defense, but rather to place emphasis on the importance of continued effort on the part of everyone connected with Civilian Defense."

A relief carrier, serving six hours a day has been authorized by the postal department but every effort is being made to have the route properly divided with two full time carriers. Word is being awaited from Washington.

Campbell Davidson, who lives on Hamilton avenue is at present serving the west side.

With the growth of subdivisions and new homes, Carrier Dan Yeager has been putting in excessive hours each day, but even so, the patrons of the latter end of his route were not getting their morning papers and other mail until late afternoon. Also it was impossible for him to return to the office in time to get collected mail into the last afternoon mail going out.

His Pigs Go to War

Young Johnny Clay of Rocky Mount, North Carolina, is typical of farm children raising victory pigs and devoting profits to War Bonds.

Farm Youth of U. S. Looks to Tomorrow

TOMORROW'S farmers and farm homemakers are second to no school group in their enthusiasm for investing in War Bonds and Stamps to make sure their future is secure. Through the Schools At War program they are investing what they save and earn in War Stamps and Bonds.

First evidence of this is the amount the 4-H Club boys and girls and the FFA boys invested in war savings in 1942 from "Victory Pig" and other projects. A million and a half 4-H Club members put $6,000,000 of their own savings in War Bonds and Stamps and sold $2,500,000 worth of War Savings to their neighbors. Nearly a quarter million members of Future Farmers of America invested more than $1,500,000.

Spurred by the realization that the financial welfare of farm families the next 20 years depends on how wisely they use today's higher incomes from increased food and other wartime production, both groups have set their goals still higher for 1943.

These farm youths are building financial reserves, and urging their parents to do the same, for after-the-war necessities, to meet financial emergencies and to help them get started in college.

They're building reserves today for tomorrow's farm buildings and for the other things they will need when they're tomorrow's farmers and homemakers.

With all the heroic measures which are being proposed by Washington officials to deal with the manpower problem—many of them palpably impractical and unworkable, and some of them as dangerous as the problem they seek to relieve—it is high time that Congress tackled the job in earnest of trimming the sails of our swollen bureaucracy and ridding Federal payrolls of hundreds of thousands of thumb-twiddlers and supernumeraries who ought to be working in production or fighting on the firing line.

The new Congress, fortunately for the welfare of the country, is already probing the hoarding of manpower by the Federal Government and plain intimations have come from congressional leaders that they will make an all-out drive to cut the government's personnel down to where it belongs if they receive the support of the people back home in the projected house-cleaning.

How vitally important it is that Congress be given the "go ahead" signal from the American people in a fight to prevent this continued waste of manpower is best evidenced by the fact that Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, chairman of the Joint Congressional Economy Committee, has estimated that one-third of the present army of 3,000,000 civilian employees on the Federal rolls could be released for essential wartime activities without in any way impairing necessary government services.

That would mean 1,000,000 more men and women available for service in production and in the armed forces—almost as great an army as that which we have sent over seas thus far ta take Cuadalcanal, to strengthen Pearl Harbor, to protect Autsralia from invasion, to whip Rommel in North Africa, to help fortify Britain, to hold Iceland and to prepare for the invasion of Europe.

Said Senator Byrd, in reporting on the swollen bureaucracy which his committee uncovered:

"In time of peril and war, the Government should be an example to its citizens, doing those things essential to our victory and to preservation of our fundamental institutions. But it is now obvious that the Administration cannot be depended upon to take the necessary measures to streamline our Government to save manpower and promote efficiency.

"While the task for Congress will be most difficult, let us remember that Congress still has control of the purse. If the demand of the people is sufficiently imperative, and I believe it is, Congress can take steps to curb these abuses that are now threatening the security of our Nation.

"The thumb-twiddlers in our Government service should be given some other work to do."

Then, Senator Byrd made his unqualified declaration regarding the extent of wasted manpower in the Federal service:

"Today the Federal Government is the chief offender in the waste and hoarding of manpower in America. Nothing in all history is in any way comparable to the waste and inefficiency that now exist in the vast number of bureaus in our Government.

"In time of peace, the waste of public funds is to be condemned severely, but in time of ware the waste of manpower by the Government in non-essential activities, as well as the waste of public funds, is inexcusable and criminal."

A special committee, appointed by President Roosevelt to report on over-loading of Government payrolls after Congress had turned the spotlight on the question, has likewise reported that thousands of able-bodied men at Government desks can be released to the armed forces if deferments are strictly limited to holders of essential jobs and if needless and overlapping positions are eliminated.

The average man does not think so poorly of his Government as to believe it has knowingly become a haven for draft evaders. But the average American has, we believe, reluctantly concluded that the Government has continued to countenance payroll padding and politics as usual in its bureaucratic agencies at a time when wasting or hoarding of manpower simply cannot be tolerated.

Effective Feb. 15, 1943 SAVES CUSTOMERS $1,450,000 per year

7 MAJOR RATE CUTS SINCE 1930

After months of study of changing population densities and increased per capita usage of Natural Gas, the California State Railroad Commission ordered a general downward revision of gas rates, effective on February 15th. It is a saving that accumulates with each gallon of water that is heated, each meal that is cooked and each hour your home is heated by Natural Gas.

We urge our customers to hold on to this saving in the daily cost of living. Be economical in the use of Natural Gas. Be thrifty with your Gas Range. Guard against overheating your home. Stop wasteful use of hot water. Remember Natural Gas is doing a big and vital job in war industries. Army camps and war worker dwellings need it, too, in increasing quantity.
